DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's request for reconsideration of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 U.S.C. § 103

2. Claims 1-6, 10 and 18-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lung et al (US Pat No. 6,292,549) in view of Solomon et al (US Pat No. 5,361,295), of record.

Regarding claim 1, with respect to Figs 1-3B, Lung et al teach the invention substantially as claimed, a method for implementing a call in a telecommunications network comprising the steps of:

receiving a request to forward calls directly to a first destination such as one of telephone sets 140 to a second destination such as another telephone set of the telephone sets 140 (Abstract; Figs 1 and 3B; col 8, ln 4-14).

Lung et al do not explicitly teach the method of contacting the second destination to obtain an approval for forwarding calls to the second destination. However, Solomon et al teach the method of contacting the second destination to obtain an approval for forwarding calls to the second destination (col 11, lns 30-55). Having the cited art at the time the invention was made, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to add the method of contacting the second destination to obtain an approval for forwarding calls to the second destination as taught by Solomon et al to provide the called party more control in handling the calls.

Regarding claims 2-3, the steps of denying the request to forward calls when the approval is not obtained and granting the request to forward calls when the approval is obtained are found in both Lung et al (col 9, ln 1-15) and Solomon et al (col 11, lns 30-55).

Regarding claim 4, Solomon et al further teach the invention as claimed, wherein the step of contacting comprises placing a call to the second destination and requesting the approval (col 11, lns 30-55).

Regarding claim 5, Solomon et al further teach the invention as claimed, wherein the telecommunications system includes an interactive voice response unit (I/P) that generates a voice message for requesting the approval (col 11, lns 30-55).

Regarding claims 6 and 10, Lung et al teach the first and second destination are telephone sets (Abstract and Fig 1, elements 140).

As to claims 18 and 21, they are rejected for the same reasons set forth to rejecting claim 1 above, since claims 18 and 21 are merely a system for implementing the method defined in the method claim 1.

Art Unit: 2642

Regarding claim 19, Lung et al teach a call forwarding, wherein the switch is a private branch exchange (PBX) (col 2, ln 4548).

As to claim 20, it is rejected for the same reasons set forth to rejecting claim 5 above, since claim 20 is merely a system for implementing the method defined in the method claim 5.

3. Claims 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lung et al in view of Solomon et al, and further in view of Yamadera et al (US Pat No. 5,444,477).

Regarding claims 7-9, the combination of Lung et al and Solomon et al teaches the invention substantially as claimed with the exception of providing first destination and second destination are computer systems which have capabilities of placing and receiving a call, respectively.

However, Yamadera et al teach the first destination and second destination are computer systems which have capabilities of placing and receiving a call, respectively (Abstract; Fig 1, elements 101-105 and col 2, ln 34-48).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to integrate computer systems which have capabilities of placing and receiving a call as taught by Yamadera et al into the combined system of Lung et al and Solomon et al for providing more flexibility in communication implementation.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 11-17 are allowed.
